2015/2016 POST UTME QUESTIONS

TIME ALLOWED: 1 HOUR

USE OF ENGLISH:

There are many indicators with which to access or measure corruption. One of them is the affluent living habit of the public official compared to his/her declared income. Corruption occurs when a public official expects to be induced to perform an act which that public official is ordinarily required to do by law.

Corruption can show down development. One of the most widely discussed consequences of corruption is the distortion of governmental expenditure. This often results in public money being wasted on white elephant projects, rather than people-oriented services such as health and education. As a result, more opportunities are presented for corrupt use or diversion of funds. Raising the ethical standards of governance can lead to many benefits especially for the economic, political and social development of country.

Fight corruption and promoting good governance is therefore crucial to developing an environment that facilitates the social, political and economic development of the people. However, while there are often general statements made about the effect of corruption on poverty and development, there is not an explicit recognition that corruption is more than just wealth misappropriation or abuse of power. Corruption impoverishes countries and deprives their citizens of good governance. It destabilizes economic system when organized crime and other illegal activities, basic public functions are eroded and the quality of life of the people is reduced. Bribery, for example, is universally regarded as a crime measures, and the involvement of the society at large.

Another implication of global measures against corruption is making government work better by preventing the economy. Finally, redesigning political and regulatory structures will reduce corruption and other anti-system players that encourage corrupt practices.

Read each passage and carefully answer the question that follows

PASSAGE I:

You all know how friendly we are with Okoeri. Do you think that any Umuaro man who goes to prison there will come back alive? But that apart, do you forget that this is the moon for planting? Do you want to grow this year's crops in the prison house in a land where your fathers owe a cow? I speak as your elder brother, I have travelled in Olu and I have travelled in Igbo, and I can tell you that there is no escape from the white man. He has come, where suffering knocks at your door and your say there is no seat left for him, he tells you not to worry because he has brought the legs, I saw with my own eyes what the white man did to Abame.

Then I knew there was no escape. As daylight chases away darkness, so will the white man drive away all our customs. I know that as I say it passes by your ears but it will happen. The white man has power which comes from God and it burns like fire. This is the God about whom we preach every eight day. Unachukwu's opponents were shouting that this was a meeting of an age group that they had not assembled to join with him in cheating the seeds of foolishness which they called their new religion.

We are talking about the white man's road; said a voice above the others. Yes, we are talking about the white man's road. But when the roof and walls of a house fall in, the ceiling is not left standing, the white man, the new religion, the soldiers, the new road they are all part of the same thing. The white man has a gun, a matchet a bow carried fire in his mouth. He does not fight with one weapon alone.

Passage III

Primitive man was probably more concerned with fire as a source of warmth and as a means choosing food than as a source of light. Before he discovered less laborious ways of making fire, he had to preserve it and whenever he went on a journey, he carried a firebrand with him.

The discovery that the firebrand, from which the torch may well have developed, could be used for illumination was probably incidental to the primary purpose of preserving a flame.

Lamps too, probably developed by accident. Early man may have his first conception of a lamp while watching a twig or fiber burning in the molten fat dropped from roasting carcass. All he has to do was to fashion a vessel to contain fat and float reed in it. Such lamps, which were made of the followed stories or identical up to quite recent times.
